Making a Meal of It: Rethinking the Theology of the Lord's Supper By Ben Witherington III

Making a Meal of It explores the background and implication of the Lord's Supper. Delving into its historical and Scriptural origins, Witherington argues that the Lord's Supper is a sacramental celebration of the community of God, designed to incorporate people of varying backgrounds. Excavating the diverse ways in which Scripture and early Christian tradition speak about the Lord's Supper, Witherington advocates that the meal is primarily about who the people of God are and how they should thus live together.

Editorial Review

Review

"Witherington provides compelling answers to many of the crucial issues."?E. Arnold, Professor and Chairman, Department of New Testament, Talbot School of Theology, Biola University

"In Making a Meal of It, Ben Witherington provides a competent guide to the numerous complexities surrounding the Lord's Supper, one that, in the end, helps the reader to understand this central Christian ceremony as something much more than either magic or mere symbolism. From socio-cultural background information to incisive exegetical observations, from careful historical survey to very practical application; this book will benefit anyone who desires to better understand?and more fully experience?the true kingdom mystery of the Lord's Supper."?Paul Rhodes Eddy, Professor of Biblical & Systematic Theology, Bethel University

"In sum, this volume is an excellent model of how scholars can serve the church by applying multiple disciplines to important issues in the church and making the results available in an accessible manner"?.Matthew S. Harmon, Grace Theological Seminary, Bulletin for Biblical Research
